

Title:

"Looking More Deeply Into Instructional Design: Beyond Simplified Descriptions"

Description:

“As their experience accumulates, instructional designers take less direction from simplified, 2-dimensional models and more direction from interesting, adaptive, and nuanced descriptions of design. More experienced designers realize that simplified, systematic models taught to novice designers are only the first step in a journey toward mature design expertise. Research on design from many fields is converging on the field of instructional design to supply new insights into that journey. “